UNIPRO WELCOMES AMERICANA INGREDIENTS TO THE COOPERATIVE

ATLANTA – UniPro Foodservice today announced the addition of Americana Ingredients to the UniPro membership, building on a cooperative where independent distributors are more than peers in a buying group; they work side by side, share knowledge, and drive collective growth.

Americana Ingredients began as a small wholesale distribution company built during the recession by going door to door to understand what customers truly needed. That customer-first approach continues to drive the business today. Now a key distributor in the Los Angeles area, Americana Ingredients supplies bakery ingredients, food packaging, and an expanding range of fresh and frozen products, including eggs and cheese. They support a wide range of customers, from food production companies and bakeries to markets and specialty operators, helping simplify operations and enable their customers to succeed.

“Americana Ingredients embodies the kind of independent, customer-focused distributor our cooperative is built around. At UniPro, we’re focused on helping partners like them grow through stronger connections and a network designed to drive real results. We’re excited to welcome them and support their goals as they build momentum, profitability, and long-term success,” said Lindsay Farmer, UniPro Senior Vice President - Member Development

Rooted in a cooperative model, UniPro connects independent distributors and Supplier partners in a way that puts Member success first. Through aligned programs, meaningful partnerships, and powerful data, UniPro unlocks opportunity and fuels growth, while preserving the independence that defines who its Members are.
